

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a method for improving cardiac function, a compressive device is inserted into an intrapericardial space about a lower end portion of a heart. Thereafter the compressive device is operated to compress and close off lower portions of both ventricles of the heart.

50 55 60 65 70 75 80 85 90 95 100